THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Dear Members of the Tennessee Genealogical Society,

We feel very fortunate in having had Mr. Walter L. Jordan, Director of Records Management of the Tennessee State Library and Archives, visit with us at our night meeting on April 15, 1968. Mr. Jordan is a native of Williamson County, Tennessee, received his M.A. degree at Peabody College, and is a graduate of the American University Institute on Archival Administration, Records Management, Genealogical Records and Records Automation. He talked to us about the "Activities and Holdings of the Tennessee State Library and Archives," some of which are:

Currently the Archives are conducting a state-wide preservation project of microfilming all county records. This is a much needed and long overdue project conducted entirely at State expense. After completion, counties desiring a positive copy of the microfilm may purchase it at cost from the State Library and Archives.

Recently completed and ready for publication, the TENNESSEE COUNTY RECORDS MANUAL contains a chapter devoted to each office of county government with a listing of all records, both current and past, with a brief general description for each kind of record listed. This will particularly aid those working with very old records, some of which may not have been created for the past 150 years. This Manual should enable all Tennessee counties to have standardized record retention and a disposal program which can insure preservation of permanently valuable records.

The Archives' original land grants begin in 1783, while the State, of course, was still a part of North Carolina. Map holdings are quite extensive. There is a file of about 600 historical maps ranging from local communities to the entire United States. There are about 15 prominent county maps which show location of streams, schools, churches, houses with names of householders, and some with inset enlargements of larger towns and villages shown. There is an 1888 Shelby County map of this kind. Original civil districts are shown on their 1836 county manuscript maps. The Archives is also an official depository for U.S. Geological Survey Topographic maps.

Their other records include Legislative Papers consisting of petitions, memorials, resolutions, etc. (These may be of great help to genealogists searching for ancestors as there are no existing Federal Census record for Tennessee prior to 1820, with the exception of Rutherford County.); Turnpike records; early county Tax Lists; county records; Military and Pension records which now include an alphabetical microfilm index to the Revolutionary Pension records filed in the National Archives; Tennessee Governors' papers; and the Supreme Court case records for East, Middle and West Tennessee, with the exception of the last few years.

Time would not allow Mr. Jordan to include anything on their valuable collections and holdings of their Manuscript and Library Sections. But he stated that they have much material of interest and importance to the researcher. We appreciate his offer to help us at any time, and we are so very grateful to have had this opportunity of having him visit with us.

Mr. S. Caya Phillips consented to be our Treasurer after Mr. Russell E. Mooney resigned on 5 March. Mr. Jonathan K. Smith will be our Director of Research, succeeding Miss Rebekah Dean who resigned 20 March for health reasons. We thank both Mr. Smith and Mr. Phillips for their willing and capable cooperation at this time.

We extend our appreciation to Mrs. Robert L. Cox for her gracious hospitality in having us in her home for the March Study-meeting. Since Lucille is our Librarian, we really took advantage of looking through ALL the books at our leisure. Also, our thanks to Mrs. Bunyan Webb (Cleo) for bringing us information about the Pedigree Referral Service that day.

Please make correction in your First Quarter 1968 publication regarding the Quarterly Business meeting time at the Pi Kappa Alpha Headquarters. The doors will be open at 7 P.M. for those who may arrive early, but the meetings will begin at 7:30 P.M.

Also, please let us know when you have a change of address! This not only results in a delay of your receiving "ANSEARCHIN'" NEWS, but is also an additional and unnecessary expense to the Society which we cannot bear. Therefore, unless an address change is sent there will be an additional charge for forwarding the magazine to the new address.

Now that the weather is almost perfect for those searches for and in old cemeteries, we hope that you will search and send us the result of your findings with complete data from tombstones for publication. It would be very worthwhile if we could locate graves of our Revolutionary and War Between the States forefathers buried in Tennessee. This could be one of our projects for this year! So, good searching to you all and best wishes for a pleasant and enjoyable summer!

Sincerely yours,

Margaret Inabinet Ericksen

Mrs. William A. Ericksen
President

NOTES FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

NOTICE!

Some of our subscribers are forgetful! Some move and do not notify us of an address change. The results are expensive, and our budget can't expand to cover the return postage, fee for Post Office notification of address change, and postage to send the magazine again.

Effective immediately, if any magazine is returned to us because of change of address, we will notify the subscriber by first-class mail of the return, and cannot resend the magazine until the subscriber pays a fee of 60 cents to cover the above costs.

Mrs. C.H. Atkinson, 900 Brazos Street, Graham, Texas 76046, reports an error in the article "Steekee Creek Cemetery, Loudon County, Tennessee," on Page 18 of Volume 15 for 1968. She advises that Jonathan Tipton (June 8, 1776 - Nov. 8, 1858) was the son of Colonel John Tipton and his wife Mary Butler Tipton. She wrote that Colonel John Tipton was one of her Revolutionary ancestors, and he had a brother Jonathan Tipton who also went to Tennessee, but Jonathan Tipton, born 1776, was the youngest son of Mary Butler and John Tipton.

Our Book Review Editor and new Director of Research, Jonathan Kennon Smith, has noted the following: The State Department of Archives and History, Division of Publications, Box 1881, Raleigh, North Carolina 27602, offers NORTH CAROLINA IN MAPS, by William P. Cumming, 15 maps, varying in size, printed on high quality off-white paper with brown ink, suitable for framing. Sent rolled in a tube. Price $5.25. Among the maps are Price-Strother, 1808, and the McRae-Brazier, 1833. They list counties, creeks, roads, mountains, special districts, railroads, etc.

Mrs. Sinclair Darnell, 638 Madison Street, Clarksville, Tennessee 37040, wrote to tell us that she and Mary Lewis Jones have a new project. They are compiling the data from the cemeteries within Fort Campbell. The Fort was built in 1942, and covers about 111,000 acres. Most of the land was taken from Montgomery County and some from Stewart County, Tennessee, while the remainder came from Christian and Trigg counties in Kentucky. Many cemeteries were moved, but about 150 remain. They expect to publish the data later this year.

Mr. Harry Orlean Alvis, 9202 Kingcrest Parkway, Baton Rouge, Louisiana 70810, has sent us a note about "ANSEARCHIN'" NEWS, Volumes 1-6 for 1954-1959, the article about the Natchez Expedition of 1813 (page 68): "At the end of the article a footnote was added from Mr. Joseph C. Hammond about Troop No. 10's Captain Bradley possibly being Captain Hugh Bradley, founder of Bradley County, Arkansas. It is possible that Mr. Hammond was mistaken. While searching for my missing Morton ancestor I abstracted the following from Thomas Morton's service record - Thomas Morton entered the service of the United States as a volunteer in Capt. Thomas Bradley's Co. in Wilson County, Tennessee, and marched to Nashville, the place of rendezvous for the army, at which time Gen. Andrew Jackson took command of the troops and marched them to Natchez. After remaining at that place until the spring, they returned to Nashville where the Army was disbanded. This particular Thomas Morton married Martha H. Cage. Thomas Morton joined the service in the fall or winter of 1812. The complete record may be obtained from the National Archives under O.W. Inv. File #1295 and Bounty Land #93165-160-55. It is very possible that Mr. Hammond was right, but I thought I would bring this discrepancy to the readers' attention. I hope it will help someone."

Mrs. Reed Johnson, 1414 North Jefferson Street, El Dorado, Arkansas 71730, sent a copy of a short letter from Thomas H. Hodo, dated April 20, 1864, from "Near Bristol, Tennessee" to his father-in-law Major John D. Johnson, Reform, Alabama: "General Longstreets' Corps has gone to Orange C.H., Va. It is rumored that it will be left here to guard the salt works above Bristol. I look for stirring times this spring about Daulton, Ga. and Richmond, Va. (signed) Thos. H. Hodo, Co. D., 41st Reg. Alabama Vol."

CAN ANYONE HELP WITH THIS ONE? Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Gardner, 1201 South Scott Street, Arlington, Virginia 22204, have prepared a study of the Armistead family of Cumberland County, Virginia, and Smith County, Tennessee. Their article is scheduled for early release by THE VIRGINIA GENEALOGIST. They need information as to the present whereabouts of the Bible record of John Armistead (Armstead) of Cumberland County, Virginia, died Smith County, Tennessee, 1830. In the sale of personal effects of his estate, William M. Armistead purchased a "big Bible"; referred to in the inventory as a "house Bible". In applying for a Revolutionary veteran's pension in 1832, John's brother Thaddeus (also of Smith County) gave his age from his "father's family Register" then in his possession.

ATTENTION, CONTRIBUTORS!

We are always pleased to receive unpublished Bible records for our magazine. In order to present a complete record, we ask that all information on the frontispiece of a Bible be included, particularly the publisher and date. If the frontispiece is missing the same information often may be found at the beginning of the New Testament.

Alexander-Graham, 209 Admiral Circle, Lawrenceburg, Tennessee 38464, have published AT REST, a compilation of cemeteries of Lawrence County, Tennessee. This 471 page book is available for $10.00 in paper cover, and $12.50 in hard cover.

BOOK REVIEWS BY JONATHAN KENNON SMITH

THE JOHNSON FAMILY AND CONNECTIONS (By Penelope Johnson Allen. Published by Helen Betts Miller, 4 Lynncrest Drive, Chattanooga, Tennessee 37411. Kingsport Press, 1967.)

This attractive genealogy, so its sponsors relate, is an outgrowth of a family narrative of the early 1890's by their ancestor, Colonel Abraham M. Johnson. The intimate account of the former account has been blended well with the data concerning the three generations since the first publication.

Mrs. Penelope J. Allen, one of Tennessee's most distinguished genealogists, and her kinswoman, Mrs. Helen B. Miller, have certainly utilized a knowledgeable format for this book. It is replete with photographs of old and new-timers, Bible photostats and the like. The index is quite complete. Among the families mentioned in this book are the Tilly, Pettigrew, Betts and Whitesides families.

THE PETTY AND FRANCIS FAMILIES AND ALLIED LINES (By Zora Petty Billingsley, 1003 West 48th, Amarillo, Texas 79110. Privately printed, 1967.)

Mrs. Billingsley may justifiably feel assured that with this genealogy she has accomplished the meaning of an expression one finds in her Preface, "This work is a tribute of respect to the memory of those who have gone before us."

The account begins, genealogically, with Thomas J. Petty whose descendants are traced with much lineal detail, involving the Francis, Nelson and Stephens families and many others. This book should be in the library of anyone related to these families.

MAURY COUNTY, TENNESSEE, NEWSPAPERS (ABSTRACTS),
VOLUME I (1810-1844) and VOLUME II (1846-1850) (Compiled by Mrs. Jill Knight Garrett, 610 Terrace Drive, Columbia, Tennessee 38401. Published 1965.)

These attractive books are clearly the result of long hours of diligent searching through eye-blinding microfilms of numerous Maury County newspapers, including The Columbian, Columbia Observer, and The Observer.

For those persons who are really interested in their ancestors as once living human beings - not just names on a lineage sheet - such studies as these are most helpful. The compiler has abstracted much from the newspaper reams that is useful to genealogists from court reports, lists of letters at the local post offices, War of Mexico veterans, militia reports, and academies in which dozens of ancestors were educated. An adequate index follows the textual material in each book.

KENTUCKY CEMETERY RECORDS, VOLUME II (Edited by Malle B. Coyle and published for the Kentucky Records Research Committee of the Kentucky D.A.R., 407 Foster Street, Florence, Kentucky 41042. Published 1968, 191 pages, including the comprehensive surname index.)

This is strictly a "fact" compilation. Within it are listed the various cemeteries found in the numerous Kentucky counties (listed alphabetically). Of course, only a few selective cemeteries from each county are listed. Volume I of this series also carried many cemeteries, listed by the separate counties.

Single monument entries are shown as: Richard D. Eubank, b. 1863, d. 1952.

EARLY MONTGOMERY COUNTY, TENNESSEE, MARRIAGES

(Editor's Note: The data that follow have not been published to the best of our knowledge. The source material from which the data were originally copied has been destroyed. Many Montgomery County records still exist: The Deed and Grant books begin in 1787; Wills, Inventories and Guardian Bonds begin in 1797; the Court Minutes begin in 1805; the preserved Marriage Records begin in 1838; and the Minute Books begin in 1840. Information in these records may be of help in obtaining proof of these early marriages for which the original records no longer exist.)

A copy of these data was contributed by Anita Whitefield Darnell (Mrs. Sinclair), 638 Madison Street, Clarksville, Tennessee 37040. Mrs. Darnell reports that about 1938, when Harry Smith was County Court Clerk, Louise Dickson Townley (Mrs. Earl J.), 103 Union Street, Clarksville, was "Ansearchin'", and in a drawer found some fragments of paper, some burned. Mrs. Townley copied these marriage records from those fragments. Somehow the fragments were destroyed later. The early marriage records are believed to have burned in the 1876 or 1900 courthouse fires.

The following data have been checked against Mrs. Townley's copy. The names appearing after those of bride and groom are those of the bondsmen.

In addition to the above data, the four following marriages were found in old newspapers. Mrs. Darnell suggests that anyone who has knowledge of an early Montgomery County marriage should send the data so that the most complete record can be accumulated.

Charnal Corban and Emily Whitledge, _____, 1818.

James Smith married Nancy Allen, Dec. __, 1823. Daughter of Valentine Allen.

Leigh Trice married Sarah Broomfield, _____, 1821. Daughter of Obediah Broomfield.

Patrick Henry married Betsy D. Taylor, April 18, 1823. Daughter of Col. Edmund Taylor.

Mrs. C.W. Lovins, 908 North 29th Avenue, Yakima, Washington 98902, has copied and indexed the 670 families in the 1850 census of Dade County, Missouri; the 561 families in the 1850 census of Cedar County, Missouri; and the 1145 families in the 1860 census of Cedar County. She advises that many of these families originated in Tennessee and offers to scan her records and copy names of interest for $1.00 AND a stamped self-addressed envelope.

MARRIAGES AND DEATHS, 1763-1820, ABSTRACTED FROM EXTANT GEORGIA NEWSPAPERS contains records from 25 early newspapers in nine Georgia cities and towns. Price $12.50. It may be ordered from Heritage Papers, Danielsville, Georgia 30633.

CHAMBLESS CHRONICLES, 1747-1968, by Dorothy Holland Herring and Jeannette Holland Stucki, 6073 Woodview Drive, Morroe, Georgia 30260, is the genealogy of the Chambliss (Chambliss) family in Georgia before 1777, descendants of Littleton, Christopher and Zachariah Chambliss. The price is $20.00, 126 pages, hard-bound and indexed.

OUR ANCESTRAL PLOTS contains all the known cemeteries of Caldwell County, Kentucky, 184 cemeteries completely copied, 302 pages, priced at $15.00, published by Mrs. E. Arwana Kyle, 102 South Trim Street, Dawson Springs, Kentucky 42408. Mrs. Kyle notes that this volume is a companion to the earlier marriage book.

The Rev. Silas Emmett Lucas, Jr., 405 Virginia Way, Vidalia, Georgia 30474, has had two volumes of EARLY RECORDS OF GEORGIA, WILKES COUNTY, VOLUMES I AND II, reprinted. These are priced at $25.00 each. They were compiled by Mrs. Grace Gilliam Davidson.

Robertalee Lent, Box 1067, Pinehurst, Idaho 83850, has published CROSS INDEX - HISTORY OF OHIO, a complete cross index to Galbreath's five volume HISTORY OF OHIO. Price $10.

CARTERS OF THE SOUTHERN STATES OF AMERICA, price $10.00, has been released by Gertrude Carter Sowell, 2237 Grace Street, Fort Worth, Texas 76111.

Someone sent a beautifully typed query on the CORBITT, GOSSETT, McCRARY, REDDEN and STRIBLING families but failed to include their name and address on the page. If the subscriber will let us know who it is, we will publish the query later.

Mrs. Minnie O. Gottlin, Route 1, Bentonville, Arkansas 72712, writes that she is copying cemeteries in Benton County, Arkansas, with the Benton County Historical Society, and has already copied some in Boone and Washington counties, Arkansas. She advises that she also does research in Arkansas and southwest Missouri.

PATIENCE, PERSEVERANCE AND PURE LUCK

Talk presented before The Tennessee Genealogical Society by Margaret McNeill Ayres (Mrs. Willis E.),
632 South McLean Boulevard, Memphis, Tennessee 38104

So you are interested in genealogy and have found great-great grandpa or maybe a generation further and the going has become difficult. The wills and marriage records are harder to find if any and Bible records non-existent, also there are a superfluity of William Joneses in one area. What to do?

Don't be discouraged. After you get back a certain distance it is necessary to search original records unless you are very fortunate in having a relative who has done much work and published it.

You must not take such articles and books at face value though. Everyone makes mistakes, check every reference given. In my Cocke line three eminent genealogists gave three different versions of several records. One reference stating definitely that Bowler Cocke married Sarah Fleming, when checked was found to refer to the query section and asked "Did Bowler Cocke marry Sarah Fleming?". None gave documentation for the statement that he had received a bequest from Charles Fleming. It took quite a search and proof was in the Council Journal, a right to re-patent granted.

Don't be too critical. Only recently have early records been readily accessible and that is one reason for many errors.

Of course there were some deliberate "mistakes" (?) to prove a point as in the Isaac Allerton will in the Newton line. After a bequest by Allerton to grandson Allerton Newton, the phrase "son of Mary Newton and John Newton, Jr." was added to the published will. This was in a genealogy in the 1920's evidently intended to refute another descent suggested in an earlier article.

Published articles can be very valuable though, but be a sceptic.

Suppose you have gone to what you consider source records and suddenly the source dries up. What to do? This means that you have been negligent in your lessons - you have studied only the primer where elementary steps are taught.

An acquaintance complained that her ancestor was in Maury County, Tennessee, but she couldn't find records beyond a certain date. She was sure that he was in Tennessee. I asked if she had searched Williamson and earlier parent counties. This was her first knowledge that counties had genealogies too.

Genealogy is history, basic and genuine and for one to be an effective searcher, genealogies of the counties, the parishes (if in Virginia) and states should be considered and references be available. Virginia and North Carolina have made charts, the former in the Horn Book and the latter available at the archives from the desk. Many records which are considered pure history by the uninitiated must be included in genealogy.

In one line in a burned county I connected four generations by Henning alone: in another published genealogy, the Hunts were divided meticulously because one Hunt was in Westover Par. and one in Surry when at one time Westover Par. was on both sides of the James River.

But let's go back to our later Tennessee families. You may have a fairly firm connection to North Carolina but need more proof and want Revolutionary service. My McNeill line is a good example. We had Bible records; a North Carolina warrant for land because of service in the Continental line, a record of pay but no grants anywhere and Henry settled in Kentucky and his land was there. All grants were not returned to Nashville and Raleigh. Some remained where the grant was issued. Old state lines were nebulous and surveyors made mistakes. This was done in the Kentucky-Tennessee boundary, a twelve mile error at the northward flowing part of the Tennessee River and my Henry had his land within this error. States were co-operative so men in the disputed areas were allowed to keep the land. Henry remained on his 640 acres. The Tennessee Archives now have a card index system for all Revolutionary grants recorded. Send only the man's name and, if there, you will receive the information. They did not have my man.

The Virginia - North Carolina boundary was changed three times. When my William Bennett moved from Lawne's Creek to Nansimond he could not be located as records were burned. His father had patented land on Fountain's Creek, and after Byrd's party "ran" the line William was in North Carolina on Fountain's Creek.

Do you realize that so far we have principally been discussing land? This is the surest proof of descent in most instances. Our ancestors didn't stay put. They had proved their wandering foot by coming over, they settled on watercourses as they needed water for their cattle, their households and for transportation. There was no connecting to the city supply! They got about amazingly by water, took land where they could get it, often in several counties and at times registered their documents in the nearest court-house. Be careful here though. Families did not necessarily move from one county to another. Often their land moved and they never left the old home. Remember your county genealogies. The part of the county where they were was cut to form a new county. This happened to my Peters. Suddenly they disappeared from Surry records. They had been divided into Sussex.

The Patents though are all important. These give an approximate date of arrival, where their transporter received land and who was with them. The date of a patent was generally much later than the arrival and in the case of re-patents years later. David Jones gave his son John as a transportee even after John had died. This was necessary in a re-patent. Fairfax Harrison's VIRGINIA LAND GRANTS gives an interesting understanding of the early - and later conveyances. There was a brisk - and often dishonest - trade in head--rights as a transportee was called, one man being used many times as each head-right was due fifty acres, or it was due to the man who paid the passage. There was also trade-in assignments.

However the land patent was firm and families tended to hold it. Transfers were generally between relatives, and though not entailed to the eldest son as in England, it was to heirs of the body. The eldest son received the home place or the Message plantation by law and is not always named in his father's will, but if he is on the land with no record you can be sure he is the eldest son.

Later treasury grants could be sold, and early land was often transferred by the lease forever but Fairfax Harrison will have to explain all details there.

If you cannot find a Virginia patent go to the Records of the Virginia Company, Minutes of the Council and General Court, the court books and Order Books or the Council Journal. Nugent's CAVALIERS AND PIONEERS is invaluable. It lists patents until 1665, and the index is so complete that if a patent has been lost one can find to whom it has been issued, and where, by the neighbors bounds. Often an earlier arrival is discovered in this way. In the patents the neighbors and watercourses are listed. Few of the creek names changed and generally the neighbors stayed, witnessing each others deeds and marrying into the families. Virginia has many old maps and early counties and watercourses. Xerox copies in two or three sections are reasonable. Using today's highway maps will give the final placement of old holdings.

We owe gratitude to later 17th Century Court Clerks. Patents were originally on loose sheets of paper with no filing system, and many were lost before interested clerks transcribed them into volumes. Many of the later patents which were saved refer to the lost earlier patents.

After the dissolution of the Virginia Company the status of the patent was quite uncertain for years, so almost every time a man inherited or acquired more land he re-patented and often recited the earlier patents. Richard Cocke seemingly patented 10,000 acres when it was only some over 2,000 acres. In the final document he added 100 acres from the patent of Temperance Bailey, so we know of one of her marriages.

To return to Court Order Books mentioned above, they are the most rewarding and interesting of the old court records. In them the earliest wills and deeds are included. Don't be afraid of what some call "court English." It was merely the chirography of the day, and certain letters varied from ours, abbreviations by each clerk differed, and there were no general rules. Kennon called it "the happy freedom in spelling." A very good book has now been published on the old writing. The abstracts of these old records are not as interesting nor quite as informative. You learn much of value from these books besides a good insight of the people and the times. Your ancestors may shock you.

Last to be considered in genealogy is tradition and I do mean last. You may be shocked but don't ignore it. Remove the vainglorious trappings and somewhere there is grain of truth. It is a hint only. In my King line I tried in the very scanty records of King William, a burned county, with no success of course. Later I was searching another family on the southside of the James and found Kings in the earliest records. In 1892, Cousin Maria Davis had written my mother quite a vague, embellished genealogy. The Kings had first come to Norfolk and Isle of Wight counties, Alexander and Robert were family names, an ancestor married a Bailey whose mother was a Carver.

For curiosity I ran the Kings down instead of back. A Captain John King had been with the Third Supply. Before he had been with Raleigh and later with Captain Newport. He was made one of the Principal Masters (a vice-Admiral?) of the King's Navy. Land was patented by a John King early, Alexander Brown said by Capt. John King, re-patented by another John King, a Robert and Alexander. Alexander's was on the Pamunkey and recited the acquisition in full. St. Peter's Parish was on both sides of the Pamunkey, so Alexander and later his son Robert (St. Peter's rec.) ran a ferry for the parish. When St. Peter's bounds were changed Robert applied for a license at the Piping Tree from the House of Burgesses. Later a tavern and then a tobacco warehouse were licensed. This warehouse was used by Virginia during the Revolution for the Continental forces, managed by Robert King - Revolutionary eligibility! All in HENNING'S STATUTES. Important business items of a family were reported in THE VIRGINIA GAZETTE. The tax lists were useful after 1781. All of this by the land from the early 1600's to 1806 when Mary Carver King Fox's death was reported in THE VIRGINIA GAZETTE. What of the Baileys and Carvers? In Gloucester (1696) John Carver gives land to son William who was to marry Dionisia Bailey. In THE VIRGINIA GAZETTE, Robert King was sole executor of Alexander Carver's estate. The names Dionisea (Dicey) Carver and Bailey were carried on in the King and Fox families. Mary Bailey King married Nathaniel Fox and her mother was Mary Bailey Carver. Not a record from King William County except late tax lists. So never be discouraged.

There are invaluable sources early, Records of the Virginia Company, Patent Books, Minutes of the Council and General Court of Virginia, Executive Council of Virginia, Council Journal, later Journal of the Council of State for Virginia, County tax lists after 1781, abstracts of early county records. Sherwood and des Cognets have published books of abstracts of Colonial records in England.

The early county records are on microfilm in the Archives of Virginia and of North Carolina. The former has indices of these and photostats in books at the desk. In North Carolina the indices are on cards. North Carolina still has many valuable records in the counties. The North Carolina grants are in a separate land office, beautifully indexed.

The accessions in both states are voluminous. In North Carolina they are being Xeroxed and put into volumes. The accessions at the Virginia Historical Society should not be missed. Two generations of my Cocke family were corrected through their Massie letters. The last also has a most valuable index of deaths and marriages from THE VIRGINIA GAZETTE and some other early papers. These go back before the Revolution.

Why do I stress research in North Carolina and Virginia for Tennesseans? Because most of us have that ancestry. Virginians moved to North Carolina because of the opportunities for inexpensive land. My James Peters sold his plantation in Virginia for which his father had paid £500 gold. In North Carolina at that time the Earl of Granville was selling grants at 3 shillings for 100 acres. James though paid 50¢ an acre for his. I suppose he paid more so he could select it.

North Carolina gave early land grants in Tennessee, and its Revolutionary grants were here, so most Tennesseans have ancestors in three states. The search is interesting and rewarding. Happy hunting!

BABY ON HER BACK: A HISTORY OF THE HUGUENOT FAMILY DU BOURDIEU (By the Rev. William J. DuBourdieu, 1967. Order from R.J. DuBourdieu, 755 Greenbriar Lane, Lake Forest, Illinois 60045.)

From the author: "As I complete this narrative of a single Huguenot family, I realize that it has been a study in depth of the Huguenot story. This it has presented through the documented tale of the descendants of one man, who with him were placed in the center of the rise and dispersion of the Huguenot faith of France. This narrative is a personalized grass-roots story of the aspirations and struggle of France's Huguenots, and of the end-effect of their conservation and heroism as seen today in its scattered living members."

A beautiful family history chronicle, BABY ON HER BACK is that rare genealogy, probably the nearest one can come in conveying the most enriching meaning of familia. The DuBourdieu rose from obscurity and were molded into a proud gens through the auspices of their religious faith. What Balzac did for his society, the late Reverend William DuBourdieu accomplished for genealogy through an intimate viewing of a family over a period of several centuries.

The format of the volume is singularly excellent. The narrative is interesting and accurate. The maps are enlightening, the portraits and pictures are clear, the "arms" is an interesting amalgam of heraldic design, the ahnentafels are easily read. Anyone writing his own family genealogy would be hard put to find a better genealogy to emulate than this DuBourdieu annal.

WASHINGTON COUNTY, GEORGIA, TOMBSTONE INSCRIPTIONS (Compiled by Mrs. Elizabeth Pritchard Newsom, 110 West First Avenue, Sandersville, Georgia 31082.)

Mrs. Newsom has published a rather unique book. She has conscientiously gleaned pertinent data from the tombstones of one county in Georgia and has included a fold-map within her text for locating these graveyards. The map is 1963 vintage, quite clear and well designed.

Some historical background of the county is given, as well as some intriguing stories about some of the burial grounds and tombstones there. It is a worthwhile investment for those with families in that locale.

Tarlton Brooks vs William Howell

Brooks made bond to prosecute his case with Christopher Hanes his security, 18 Mar. 1823.

To the Honorable Jacob Peck one of the Judges of the Chancery Court to be held at Knoxville for the Second judicial Circuit in the State of Tennessee.

...your Orator Tarlton Brooks, of Jefferson County...Tennessee...that for many years being poor and having a large family to support...he had lived and rented land, having none of his own, untill about the 25th of December 1821...he bargained with a certain William Howell of the county of Jefferson...for a tract of 175 acres as mentioned in the bond of said Howell given for the title thereof; ...executed to said Howell his several notes...for $875....the bond was written by one of the sons of said Howell and witnessed by another...charges that it was part of the agreement...he should have immediate and entire possession... Your Orator commenced building on the premises a house to live in...found said Howell had rented to his nephew nearly all the cleared land...would not give your Orator possession as he ought to have done. (A long paragraph about Howell misrepresenting the bounds of the land.)...this Orator concluded that he was absolved from any equitable obligation on his part further to carry the contract into execution and therefore troubled himself no more with the premises. Now said Howell pretends he is entitled to receive and recover from your Orator the amounts of his notes...recovered judgement against your Orator before Ruben Chinchman esquire...for county of Jefferson...levied on property of your Orator which is liable to be sold in a few days...prays a writ of Subpoena to issue to prevent any further proceedings under said judgment...sworn to 18 March 1823.

Exhibit No. 1 is the bond signed by William X Howell and witnessed by Asa Howell. The bond is to warrant title for 175 acres lying in the Counties of Jefferson and Grainger on both sides of the main road leading from the Panther Springs to Cheeks Cross roads, known by Worleys Improvement and beginning at Jesse Howells North West corner...to William Howell Jr. South West corner...25 Dec. 1821.

Answer of William Howell

...admits it may be true that Complainant at the time of the contract was a tenant of a certain Christopher Hanes in Jefferson County and for many years previously had been; your Respondant expressly charges that it was a part of the agreement that Complainant should have immediate and entire possession is untrue. About a year before respondent had rented to a certain William Howell, his nephew, a portion of said premises for two years...went to William Howell to see if he would surrender the ballance of his lease...he would not. ...the contract was made that complainant have possession of all not rented and that after the lease was up he would take possession of the remainder. The complainant took possession...made some buildings or improvements, and rented the land of which he was in possession to a certain Mathew Russell ...on the expiration of William Howells lease, he abandoned the possession, since which time the premises have been entirely in a situation to be occupied. Your

Respondent is convinced that Compt has become dissatisfied with his contract from the influence of his landlord Chris Hanes, who is anxious to retain his services as tenant. Respondent has a good title to said land...it was granted by the State of North Carolina to Mathew Willoughby, conveyed by deed to Willis Worley, and by deed from Willis Worley to respondent. Sworn to 13 Oct. 1823.

Decree - 6 June 1826 Tarlton Brooks lost his case for want of proof.

ASSOCIATION FOR RECORDS AND CENSUS INDEXING

(Published at the request of Mr. J. Hobart Bartlett)

The need for indices among genealogists and historians is rapidly increasing. This applies to all types of records which are now being searched repeatedly by many different people. Particularly important are the Federal Census records. Many records, however, other than census records should also be indexed, such as marriages, probate, Bible, land, tax lists, and passenger lists.

During the mid 1930's some indexing of original records was initiated to provide work for unemployed people. When the available funds were expended the work was discontinued. With the onset of the Social Security program, an applicant often had to furnish proof of his age. The difficulties experienced by many persons led to financing by the Federal Government of the indexing of the Census records of 1900 and 1920, and of part of the 1880, using the Soundex system. Nevertheless, indexing of the vast number of early records remains to be done and is still urgently needed.

Automatic data processing, as a means of analyzing and indexing records, has become commonplace in recent years by all progressive establishments, including colleges and universities. Genealogists and historians should do no less. To this end a nonprofit association has been formed and was incorporated on August 28, 1967; the name of which is the Association for Records and Census Indexing.

At present the Association is continuing the transcribing and indexing of the 1850 census of Tennessee, which was formerly sponsored by the National Genealogical Society. Tennessee is being used as the pilot state. Considerable care is being given to details so as to develop a workable pattern which can be used for similar purposes in all other states.

Work on the Tennessee census is progressing very well. To date more than 75 percent of the transcribing has been completed by volunteer workers. Two different volunteers separately transcribe the census for each county. These are now being compared to assure accuracy. Methods of programming the data for electronic computer processing to compile the indices are under investigation. Upon completing these phases of the work, the data will be ready for key punching and indexing. Each volunteer worker participating in the transcribing and associated activities, and each organization which donates processing services will be given recognition as each indexing undertaking is completed. Additional volunteers are invited to aid in this work.

The mailing address of the Association for Records and Census Indexing is P.O. Box 9621, Arlington, Virginia 22209. Its Board of Directors are J. Hobart Bartlett, Joseph E. Ferrier, William T. Pryor, Francis C. Rosenberger, George Ely Russell, and Noel H. Thompson. The professional consultants of the Association are Robert W. Carder, Donald Lines Jacobus and Gunther E. Pohl.
