From the Editor

Welcome to the summer issue of Ansearchin' News! I hope you'll enjoy what we have for you here. You'll find continuations of Henry County Circuit Court Minutes, the Cumberland Chronicles from Scott County, Stewart County Court Minutes, Lincoln County Miscellaneous Records, and Moore County Probate Records, all transcribed by Loretta Bailey. We also have an article detailing the Johnsonville Campaign of Confederate General Nathan Bedford Forrest written by my brother, Ken Ingram. Plus there are a substantial number of Gleanings, submitted by Sylvia Harris.

Don't forget that you are welcome to submit articles for publication in Ansearchin' News. And when you do, be sure to include photographs and other graphic items. Just make them high resolution digital files, preferably JPG format.

Vice-President's Message

The Tennessee Genealogical Society has had a very busy Spring. We just finished our Spring Lecture Series and our Seminar with Michael Hait, CG. I appreciate all the volunteers that helped make these events a success. Some of the classes we recently had are Genealogy Journaling, Fold3, Genealogy 101, Military Records, and an African American workshop.

We also learned how to Index and many of our members are indexing for our society's group. If you want to participate in the indexing, go to https://familysearch.org/volunteer/indexing and when asked to enter a group, sign in under the Tennessee Genealogical Society. We are having a wonderful time helping to index the newly released 1940 census!

Debbie Atchley's "Let's Discuss It" has been bringing in a full house. Did you know you can access her handouts on our website, http://www.tngs.org? Just click on the "Let's Discuss It" link and you will see handouts posted starting in 2009! These handouts are great genealogical and technical resources for family history.

This summer we will be visiting family history databases and learning what they have to offer. Some of the ones we will look at are FamilySearch, Ancestry, Heritage Quest, the Ancestor's Website and many others. The Field Trips have been a great success and a lot of fun. Some of the past Field Trips have been visiting the Cordova Museum, Shelby County Archives, Memphis Library, and the Memphis Court House. We have some great trips planned for this summer and hope you can join us! Of course, we will still be having our monthly Genealogy 101 and Genealogy Journaling classes. We now offer a class to help young men get their Genealogy Merit Badge. If you know of a young man who is in Scouts and would be interested, we would love to work with him and his troop. If he does not live in the Memphis area, I can make special arrangements for him to do the requirements with me online thru email.

I am interested in lecture topics or suggestions for field trips that you may have. I am also looking for anyone who would like to share their talents in speaking on anything involving genealogy and/or history. Please contact me if you have suggestions. We now have a Social Media presence online.

The Federation of Genealogical Societies will be in Birmingham, Alabama on August 29-September 1, 2012. This is a wonderful opportunity to participate in a national genealogy conference. More information can be found at http://www.fgs.org/2012conference.

We want to give much thanks and gratitude to all our volunteers and members that do so much to help us keep the Tennessee Genealogical Society going.

State of Tennessee, Henry County. Be it remembered that at a Circuit Court began and held for the County of Henry aforesaid at the Court house in the town of Paris in Said County on the fourth Monday in May in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and thirty five and of the Independence of the United States the fifty ninth, before the Honorable Lansford M. Bramlett, one of the Circuit Judges of the State of Tennessee aforesaid commissioned in the sixth Judicial Circuit of the State of Tennessee and by an interchange John W. Cooke, Judge of the ninth Judicial District _____ and assigned to hold the Circuit Courts in said County on said Circuit.

James C. Gainer, high Sheriff in and for said County returned here unto said Court the States writ of Venire facias to him directed, executed on John Perkins, Daniel Hendricks, Elijah Etheridge, Warham Easley, John A. Winfrey, John Wall, Jr., Brantley G. Clark, Berry Thomason, William Randle, Edward Travis, John Atkins, Benjamin Cheairs, Charles Crutchfield, Jeremiah Morgan, John K. Campbell, Julian Frazier, Soloman Williams, Martin Baker, William Dillahunty, James Dinwiddie, Jr., William Cheairs, Samuel Swearingen, Simeon Walton, J. William Copeland out of whom are selected as the Statute in that case provides the following persons a Grand Jury, that is to say Benjamin Cheairs, foreman, Samuel Swearingen, Elijah Etheridge, John K. Campbell, William Randle, Simeon Walton, Charles Crutchfield, John Atkins, Warham Easley, William Copeland, Martin Baker, Jeremiah Morgan and John Wall, Jr. good and lawful men of said County, who being now here impaneled and sworn to inquire for the State aforesaid and for the body of the County of Henry aforesaid received their charge from the Court.

On Motion It is ordered by the Court that Edward Travis be released from further attendance as a Juror to this term.

It appearing to the satisfaction of the Court from the return of the Sheriff that John Perkins and James Dinwiddie, Jr. were regularly summoned to attend as Jurors at this term of this Court and they being solemnly called, came not but made default. It is therefore considered by the Court that for their said contempt they severally make their peace with the State of Tennessee by the payment of five dollars fine each unless they shew cause at or before the next term of this Court of their inability to attend, and that scire facias issue &c.

The Johnsonville Campaign, 1864

The Johnsonville Campaign, October – November, 1864

By Ken Ingram

By the autumn of 1864, the powers that be within the Confederacy could see the handwriting on the wall. Losses at Gettysburg and Vicksburg, the keys to any stalemate, coexistence or intervention on her behalf by Great Britain, doomed the Confederate States of America to her ultimate fate in the summer of 1863. Those not clinging desperately to "The Lost Cause" could see it all clearly; everything now only delayed the inevitable. Major General Nathan Bedford Forrest, CSA, saw it so, but, as a man of fierce determination, he would see it through to the conclusion. He would do his duty.

So it was in the western theatre of operations during October of 1864 that Union Major General William Tecumseh Sherman, fresh from the reduction of Atlanta, Georgia, unleashed his forces toward the ultimate goal of Savannah, Georgia, on the coast. Savannah lay at the end of a tenuous, 435-mile-long logistics chain in Georgia; it was Sherman's intention to sever his ties to that lifeline and exist off the land before him, forcing those who aided and supported the current insurrection to lose their ability to wage war. It was a most un-chivalrous campaign through the heart of the Confederacy that vilified Sherman among Southerners for generations to come, but there can be no doubt that it hastened the end of the war.1

Sherman's logistics chain in Georgia extended north to Chattanooga, Tennessee, then westward, across the Tennessee River to Nashville and the east bank of the Tennessee River's second division of the state of Tennessee, a place in Humphreys County so named "Johnsonville" by Tennessee's wartime governor, Andrew Johnson. The pre-war Nashville & Northwestern Railroad had built to this unnamed location by the start of hostilities in 1861. Following the Confederate losses at Shiloh, Corinth and Nashville, the unrealized victory of Chickamauga and the ultimate loss of Chattanooga, Tennessee was virtually under control by the Union. A wartime entity, the United States Military Railroad, or USMRR, was tasked with shoring up and maintaining the lines under its control, including the Nashville & Northwestern. Protected in early 1864 by fortified blockhouses, this railroad was singled out as vital to the Union's supply line to Nashville and on to Chattanooga. The Tennessee River was deep and navigable to the location soon to be named Johnsonville. becoming shallow and treacherous further south, or "upriver". There were only two other means of getting supplies into Nashville: the Cumberland River and the Louisville &

Nashville Railroad. The Cumberland was low in the fall of 1864, too low for steamboat navigation, and the Louisville & Nashville had been subjected to the wrath of Confederate cavalry raiding parties, often out of commission for weeks at a time. Thus it was that this place, at the end of the line on the east bank of the Tennessee, was selected by the Union Army's Quartermaster Corps as the major steamboat offload point for supplies to be transferred to USMRR railroad cars and shipment to the east and south.

"I have been constantly in the field since 1861, and have spent half the entire time in the saddle. I have never asked for a furlough over 10 days in which to rest and relax..." So wrote Forrest to his immediate superior, Lieutenant General Richard Taylor, early in October of 1864.² This led to a reply from Taylor, stating there would be no rest for the weary; the situation was at present far too "precarious". Now, with Hood on the move north into Tennessee from Atlanta with what was left of the Confederate Army of Tennessee, and the Union General Sherman embarking on what would be "The March to the Sea", would be the time for Forrest and his cavalry to disrupt the Union supply line. Virtually unscathed for six months since completion of facilities in May, the USMRR and the ship-toshore transfer facilities at Johnsonville had been sending a continuous cargo to Nashville. Informed of this by Confederate intelligence and his own scouts, Forrest quickly sized up the situation and rode out of his Cherokee, Alabama encampment toward Johnsonville and the old Confederate Fort Heiman earthworks, 25 miles north of Johnsonville, just south of the Tennessee-Kentucky state line, abandoned by the Union after its capture in 1862. He brought with him Chalmers', Mabry's, Bell's, Rucker's and Buford's brigades of cavalry, and Morton's battery of artillery, in all slightly less than 3,000

Forrest was intent upon disrupting Tennessee

River steamboat traffic in advance of any operations against Johnsonville proper. The old Fort Heiman earthworks would serve as his base for that; his first intention was to be a blockade of the river. By the 29th of October, Forrest had everything in place; Morton's battery occupied the lower works of the old fort, with the various brigades of cavalry hidden along the west shore. and scouts both north and south. On the morning of the 29th, four guns of Morton's battery opened fire on the Union steamer Mazeppa with such murderous effect that she drifted unpowered to the shore opposite Fort Heiman and was abandoned by her crew. Following her abandonment, Confederate Captain Frank Gracey of Buford's 3rd Kentucky cavalry swam across the river and secured a length of manila hawser. The Mazeppa was warped across to the west shore where she was found to be "heavily laden with hard tack bread, flour, bacon, coffee, shoes, blankets, axes, etc." This was all quickly unloaded on the river bank, and records show that Forrest shared the bounty of the Mazeppa with the local civilian populace. A funny story passed down by the Confederate Veteran magazine states, "When approaching the landing, General Forrest spotted a two-gallon demijohn of good Kentucky bourbon. His troopers called to him to not drink it all, but share the bourbon with them, to which the General replied – 'Plenty of meat, boys, plenty of shoes, blankets and hard tack, but just enough whiskey for the General! Haw, haw, haw!' But the General did, in fact, share the whiskey with his men!"

When the last of the stores had been removed, Forrest ordered the wrecked and disabled steamer burned. The ship's bell, bearing the inscription, "Mazeppa, G. W. Scoggins, Cincinnati, 1864" has been in the hands of the First United Methodist Church of Waverly, Tennessee, since salvage following the war.⁴

The next morning, the 30th of October, the steamer Anna, leading two other steamers, the J. W. Cheeseman and the Venus, escorted by the gunboat U.S.S. Undine came along unsuspecting downriver from Johnsonville and hove into view of Captain John Morton's guns inside the Fort Heiman works. The fortunate Anna, coming under intense artillery fire, was spared and limped on to Paducah, Kentucky and safety. The rest were so raked by Morton's cannons and musket fire from the dismounted cavalry troopers during the six-hour fight that ensued that they were all, along with two barges towed by the J. W. Cheeseman, beached on the east bank opposite Fort Heiman and abandoned by their surviving crews, who took to the woods and escape. Captain Gracey was once again dispatched across the river, this time accompanied by two companies of troopers, all on rafts, along with Colonel Kelly of the 15th Tennessee cavalry. The Undine and Venus were empty, excepting one Union officer and ten enlisted men captured, but were deemed 'river worthy' by the former Cumberland River pilot Gracey. The Cheeseman, on the other hand, was laden with stores intended for points north.

The story is passed down that General Forrest, following his Tennessee River operations further north, established his headquarters for the next phase of operations against Johnsonville in the two-story log home of James Sykes and family on what was then a stage road later known as Eva-Camden Road, about 400 yards west of the rock building formerly known as Eva School.5 General Forrest brought a small, two-drawer desk with him which has survived to this day. owned at one time by Myrtle Hollingsworth Summers of Eva, a granddaughter of James Sykes. Evidently General Forrest brought the desk with him in the wagon train of supplies and goods taken from both Mazeppa and J. W. Cheeseman. The Cheeseman bounty consisted of sugar, pickles, crackers, coffee, tea, candies, nuts, and "furniture confiscated by the Yankees from the civilians in Nashville", all of which,

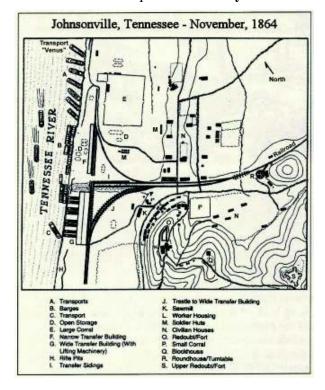

Wreck of the J. W. Cheeseman following the events, was redistributed among the troops and local citizens.

And now we come to that part of the story when cavalry troopers became navy sailors for the first and only time in American history. On the 31st of October, having seen the events unfold the day before, with a virtual trove of supplies and three relatively-intact steamboats in his hands, Forrest ordered a detachment under Gracey to take command of the Undine and another old steamboat man, Lieutenant Colonel W. A. Dawson, to command the Venus as the flagship; the Cheeseman he ordered burned. The new Confederate "fleet" entered into combat against a Union flotilla comprising the gunboats U.S.S. Tawah, U.S.S. Key West and U.S.S. Elfin, commanded by Lieutenant John King, USN, which was later joined by a flotilla of five tin-clad gunboats out of Paducah under the command of Lieutenant Commander LeRoy Fitch. Over the course of the next four days, which resulted in much physical damage to the U.S. Navy's gunboats, as well as damage to the ego when once they learned who it was they were fighting, the little Rebel fleet wreaked havoc on the river until the Undine and Venus were subsequently forced into being abandoned and burned by their Confederate crews. Forrest was so pleased with Captain Gracey's performance that the General dispatched Gracey to Richmond with the report, "Where I had the pleasure of describing the events to President Davis and General Lee in person".

An almost unbelievable turn of events then occurred when Fitch, King and the Union Army commander of troops within the Johnsonville works, Colonel C. R. Thompson, mistakenly thought that with the loss of Undine and Venus, Forrest would end his intentions and cross the Tennessee River heading eastward to join Hood. In fact, Forrest headed south into Benton County, dividing his troops near the Flatwoods Methodist meeting-house; some of them rode south with Forrest himself through the Beaverdam Creek valley, and some to the southeast over a regular road into what is today Eva. Contact was avoided to the maximum extent practicable with homes in the countryside, most especially with those known to be sympathetic toward the Union. It is now known that Forrest took up headquarters in the Sykes home.

Union Colonel J. C. Peterson, with 300 Quartermaster Corps volunteers and a section of regular army artillery, arrived at Johnsonville on the evening of November 3rd to help strengthen the Johnsonville defenses.

Captain John Morton, Forrest's chief of artillery, described the lay of the land for the next phase of the campaign in the October, 1907 Taylor-Trotwood Magazine⁷: "The western bank of the Tennessee River directly across from Johnsonville, when the river is low in the summer and fall, is about 15 to 20 feet above the level of the water, then gradually recedes as is usual with all Southern rivers. That side of the river was heavily covered with cypress growth back then. The trees had been felled immediately in front of Johnsonville and for some distance back, in order to give their gunners an open field of fire. The federal position had many defensive advantages, which would render an attack on it hazardous almost beyond hope of success.

"October and November of 1864 were very wet. The roads there were nigh impassable, and off the roads was nothing but mud. Our troops, loaded with the booty of our success and floundering in the mud, moved south into position along the river. It took eight yoke of oxen to move one piece of artillery through the mud. On November 3rd, the sections of artillery we had with us were Captain J. C. Thrall with two 12pounder howitzers, dug in one half mile above Johnsonville Landing, Sergeant Lemuel Zarring with two 3-inch rifled Rodmans directly across from Johnsonville, the site selected by me, then Lieutenant Brown's two 3-inch Rodmans of Captain Rice's section across from the mouth of Trace Creek, Lieutenant Haller's section with two James Rifles, adjacent to Lieutenant Brown, and Sergeant Crozier with two 10-pounder Parrott guns some 400 yards downstream. The rest of General Forrest's artillery was at work across from Reynoldsburg Island. All the horses and oxen had been sent to the rear. The dismounted cavalry were concealed behind logs, trees and ravines and in easy supporting distance of the guns. My orders from General Forrest were quite specific – as soon as I was in position, the following morning, November 4th, I was to personally reconnoiter the happenings directly across the river from me. When I gave the order to fire to Sergeant Zarring, it would be the signal up and down the line to open up."

When Captain Morton's raised hand came down at 1:00 p.m., Sergeant Zarring fired one of the Rodmans. A split second later, the remaining nine guns fired as one, "The most beautifully choreographed artillery firing I ever saw, before or after", to quote Captain Morton. They kept firing without let up, until one by one, U.S.S. Elfin began belching steam and smoke as her crew abandoned the ship, a line of moored transports began to explode as their crews tried to escape the scalding steam and flames by jumping into the river, and stacked supplies along the river bank and on the wharf began to catch fire. The flames quickly spread to the warehouses, and within forty minutes of opening fire, the conflagration was on. By late afternoon, the wharf, warehouses and supplies were a solid mass of flames, as were the transports in the river, all of which burned to the water line. Amazingly spared and utilized after the war for years was one of the buildings containing winches and lifting machinery. Years later, it was owned by the San-Gravel Company and used for loading gravel into barges.

That night, Forrest began withdrawing his troops and artillery from the river bank by the light of the Johnsonville flames, which lit up the surrounding countryside for miles around. I was told by my own great uncle, George Herndon, who was told by those relatives and friends who were actually there, that the flames lit up the Eva side of Tennessee River across from Johnsonville the night of November 4th, 1864, as bright as if it was daytime. It was also said that the noise from the cannonade that day was plainly heard by the local citizenry "as loud as thunder from a clear sky".

The next day, November 5th, Forrest's rear guard of cavalry exchanged musket shots with some Union soldiers across the river, and then the entire troop of cavalry and artillery rode off in a direction again confounding to the Union, camping the night of November 6th, 1864, in Perryville, Kentucky.

The final result of the Johnsonville battle proper was the complete and utter destruction, excepting some lifting and hoisting machinery, of the entire Union supply depot at Johnsonville, along with the transports Mountaineer, Doane Number 2, Arcola, Aurora, Duke, Goody Friends and the previously captured and burned – then towed to Johnsonville – Venus, and finally, the tinclad gunboats U.S.S. Elfin, U.S.S. Tawah and U.S.S. Key West. Official losses were monetarily placed at $2,200,000.8 The Johnsonville depot was never placed back in service.

Johnsonville Warehouses, 1864

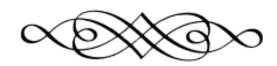

Forrest's losses throughout the entire campaign were one man killed, nine captured; Union losses were nine men killed. Though Sherman had already made the decision to 'live off the land', this action on the part of Forrest was both humiliating and exasperating. Sherman stated, upon receipt of the Johnsonville news, "That devil Forrest must be hunted down and killed, if it costs 10,000 men and bankrupts the entire Federal treasury!"⁹

The entire 'lay of the land' has changed significantly since the events of 1864. It is said nothing lasts forever. The creation of the TVA's Kentucky Lake in 1944-45 submerged most likely forever the various sites where Morton's battery was actually emplaced. So too the wharf of the Johnsonville depot, and the hulls of the steamboat transports that were burned during the battle. Johnsonville the town grew from the remains of the old Union supply depot as the Nashville & Northwestern Railroad (later part of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railway, now CSX) bridged the river and built on to Hickman, Kentucky, but it ceased to exist when Kentucky Lake came into existence and was relocated three miles south as New Johnsonville.

FROM NEW RIVER

It is with sorrow that we have learned of the death of Capt. J. C. Newport on the 15th instant, and our sympathies go out for the bereaved family.

Miss Lizzie Lancaster is teaching a subscription school at this place.

Wm. Mumford has moved back to this place and says "there is no place like New River."
Wm. Cook of this place, formerly of Michigan has received a letter from his attorneys stating that his pension has been allowed at the rate of $8. per month. Cook is an honest, hard working man, and we are proud to know that justice even in a small degree is in store for those who saved the Union.

M. F. Shelton is moving down in the bottom where he will be nearer his work.

Senator Craighed of Memphis is quite liberal, he wants the State to pay $12,000 to $15,000 the expense of the extra session of the legislature called for the special benefit of Memphis.

Mrs. F. G. Norcross and daughters was home Sunday.

Joel Lackey and James Willoughby of Black Creek were in town Tuesday.

Huntsville, Tennessee, Saturday March 29, 1890 A few days ago in the corridor of the Maxwell House at Nashville, Capt. S. T. Harris met with Capt. Frank Battle, the former having been a captain in the federal army and the latter in the confederate. Each had been tried and sentenced to death. Capt. Harris saw his coffin and Capt. Battle saw arrangements made for his execution. Capt. Battle was made a hostage for Capt. Harris and both their lives were saved and at the close of the war each returned to his home, and during all the years intervening, they have never met until yesterday, Capt. Harris coming to Nashville to find the man whose life had saved his, and whose life he had saved. The two soldiers of contending armies sat down in time of peace as brothers of a common family and citizens of a common country, and talked their prison and perilous life over and retired to the same room and spent the night together. This treatment of each other reminds one of the New England home when the son of an officer in the American Army of Great Britain married the daughter of an officer in the American army. Each cherished the memory of a heroic and illustrious sire, and loved the cause for which each had given their lives, and taking the swords of each soldier they crossed them over their door and under the crossed swords of two great armies, lived for many years a happy and contented family.

One frequently hears of "killing two birds with one shot", but it isn't often that one hears of killing a wild goose on the wing, a dog on terra-firma, all at one shot. But that is precisely what Captain Si Mott of far Rockaway did. He was strolling along the shore at Wave Crest when a flock of wild geese passed over him, flying very low. He pulled out his 32-calibre revolver and shot at the flock, bringing to the ground a large fine goose. When the ball descended, it struck a dog a short distance away, with such force upon its head that the animal expired after two or three kicks. It is pronounced the shot of the season, and the captain is now the hero of the hour in gunning circles.

The principle actors in the Ohio ballot box forgery case have all been done in wax and are exhibited in a dime museum. Such is fame. There is one thing to be said in favor of the group, however. They are nearly all handsome men including both the governors of Ohio, Editor Murat Halstead, blond and rosy; Amor Smith, the stunning looking mayor of Cincinnati, and Congressman Ben Butterworth, whose earthly temperament strives all the while to get the better of his Quaker ancestry. The Republicans of Scott Meet in Mass Convention – Houk Unanimously Endorsed. The Republican convention which had been so extensively advertised and which was largely attended was called to order by the Chairman, R. Hurtt, at 12 M. On motion of J. F. Baker, R. Hurtt was made permanent chairman and C. C. Cross was made permanent secretary. On motion of W. H. Buttram the chair appointed committees on resolutions and delegation. On resolutions, Jim F. Baker, Joel Robinson, B. Cecil, B. P. Smith and John Pemberton. On Delegation, W. H. Buttram, Geo. Cross, Wm. Smither, Sterling McDonald and I. M. Jones. The committee on delegation reported as follows: We, your committee on delegations beg leave to submit the following report. We appoint

To the Gubernatorial convention D. Jeffers, Capt. Isaac Riseden, J.C. Parker, J. F. Baker, Joseph Botts, E. Hembree, C. Cross, J. F. Hughett, Wm.Sharp, Jeff Pemberton, B. Cecil, W.A. Newport, E. Master Robert Keen was visiting his cousins A. Y. and Emmett Keen of this place the first of the week. A.L. Puckett, W. H. Carson, W. C. Belvins, John Fetterman and Wm. Litton of Oneida were in town this week.

Joel Robinson, Esq., Hon. B. Cecil, J. Reed, J. W. McCoy, M. F. and Isham Hurtt and Levi Phillips of New River were in town this week.

The Quarterly Court elected F. M. Chambers, W. C. Gibson and James Jeffers as members of the Board of Equalization for 1890.

Esq. Walker, John, Jasper and Frank Hughett, Mrs. Loyd, John Riley Buttram and John and Jeff Pemberton were down from Brimstone this week. Mess. N. A. Ross, L. M. Jones, David and Dawes Creekmore, J. S. Dorman, G. C. Chitwood, I. S. Jones, A. Murphy and a great many other prominent citizens of Winfield were in town on business the first of the week.

Randall the Statesman is Dead. At 5 o'clock on the morning of the 13th, Samuel J. Randall died at his residence in Washington City. Around his bedside were the family, the physician and the Post Master General Wannamaker, who had all kept a constant watch over the dying man during the night. In the death of Congressman Randall the country loses one of its ablest and purest statesman. Although Mr. Randall has represented District of Pennsylvania in the American Congress for more than twenty-five years there can be no one found who can truthfully say aught against his honesty and integrity.

Congressional Convention – The convention to nominate a Republican candidate for Congress for the Second Congressional District met in Knoxville on the 10th and was called to order by Hon. D. M. Kauffman of Rockwood, acting chairman of the Executive Committee of the Second Congressional District of Tenn. Hon. J. H. Agee of Campbell was unanimously elected permanent chairman and Hon. W. L. Duggan of Sevier and W. H. Buttram of Scott permanent secretaries. Resolutions were offered and unanimously adopted endorsing President Harrison, Speaker Reed and Congressman Houk. The resolutions declared for protection a general Pension law, Federal aid to education and a National election law. On Motion Hon. L. C. Houk was declared the unanimous choice of the convention and he was declared the Republican nominee for Congress in the Second Congressional District. A committee of which Dr. L. Jones Price of Knoxville was chairman was appointed to notify the gentlemen of his nomination. The committee retired and in a short time returned with the Judge. Dr. Price introduced him to the convention amid deafening applause. Judge Houk after heartily thanking the convention for the honor conferred on him proceeded to address the convention in his own peculiarly happy style. He held the listeners spell bound for over two hours and many times during his speech it seemed that the roof of the Hall was going to be raised, the applause was so loud and long. The Judge for an individual of his age was a perfect picture of health and asserted that he was enjoying better health and feeling stouter than he had for more than twenty seven years and that those who had been waiting at the gates of his cemetery for the arrival of his remains to the end that they might be ready to jump into his old shoes had just as well throw up the sponge and admit that Houk after all was not going to die any ways soon, and that Congressional honors dependent upon is demise were certainly not a bird in the hand.

FROM ROBBINS

Mrs. Ott was called to Cincinnati Saturday by the death of her uncle.

Mrs. Freeman of Chattanooga is visiting her daughter Mrs. Johnnie Wilson.

Little Pearlie Bramel fell from their barn loft, and was thought to be seriously hurt but proved to be more of a scare and is able to be out again.

Mrs. Leak, Miss Julia St. Clair and A. S. Curiell visited W. L. Leak of Oneida Saturday.

Miss Eva Gorbold who has been assistant teacher in the Academy left here the 11th. She will visit her sister at Grand View in Rhea county, then she will return to her home near Cincinnati. She leaves a host of friends in Huntsville.

Huntsville, Tennessee, Saturday April 26, 1890

At the last session of the Tennessee Legislature an act was passed dissolving James county and annexing a portion of Bradley County and the balance including the county seat to Hamilton county. When the County Register of Hamilton and Bradley counties were enjoined by James county citizens from taking possession of the county records or in any way molesting them. The James county contestants claim that the act of the legislature is unconstitutional.

H. B. Lindsay went over to Knoxville Wednesday.

James Lay is in Knoxville this week on business.

Misses Lyda Craig and Ella Sexton are expected to return from Williamsburg today Saturday where they have been attending school. W. H. Potter, J. M. Keen and Jim F. Baker are attending the Cardiff and Rockwood sales. They say they are going to make a fortune. We expect they will walk back.

John Daugherty, who was convicted at the last term of the Circuit Court, has been transferred to Tracy City. John writes that he is well cared for – he will have a little over nine months yet to serve.

A Poor Crazy Woman in Jail – Mrs. Goodtaste is confined in our County Jail on a charge of Lunacy. Until recently she was considered a leader both in society and fashion. She was noted for her sound judgment and refinement. But alas her husband refused to furnish her the necessary amount of money to buy one of those new style Spring hats for sale by F. M. Ross & Son at Winfield and the poor woman's mind became unbalanced from grief. Shame on such husbands. From Straight Fork Valley – Straight Fork Valley is about one mile wide and four miles long, it is nearly surrounded with towering mountains, heavily timbered and containing several coal mines from four to seven feet in thickness We have one mine in active operation. We have 2 stores, 2 sawmills, and 2 grist mills, 2 churches and 2 school houses. We have some very good farming land here in the valley. They say Mr. E. Jeffers says he will sell, red or white coal either, and some of the boys go up there and get the fighting kind and come back swearing they can whip any man in the Petite gap. Two negroes had a fight at the Gap Friday which resulted in one cutting the others throat and he is not expected to live. The people of Straight Fork say three cheers for Joel Robinson, Esq. in honor of his able defense against the little corporation on Petite mountain. If this does not find its way to the waste basket, I will write again.

Second paragraph: The Power of Naming Demonstrating another power naming tradition, my Memphis born maternal grandparents named twelve of their thirteen children for themselves or for the father's siblings. None were named for any of the mother's siblings. The one child not named for a kin was named for a Memphis based Mississippi River Boat. It was on this river boat where the mother's father resided at the time of the grandchild's birth. While not part of the oral tradition, this naming served to identify his residency.

First paragraph of The Story of Eulalia: My great aunt, Rebecca Eulalia Driver, was the eldest surviving daughter of the sixteen children of William and Sallie (Campbell) Driver. On the 1880 census for Memphis, Tennessee, Rebecca, at age 5, is listed in the home of her parents. Following her education, Rebecca became a Memphis City "Colored" school teacher where she taught at the "Kortrecht School for Negroes". On November 6, 1895, in Memphis, she married C. H. Countee. Research revealed the groom's initialized name stood for Charles Henry Countee, the son of Rev. Robert N. Countee and wife, the former Melissa Thompson. While Rebecca's parents were economically established, Charles' father was of the black political and religious elite and a significant leader of the "Negro" community.

Adopt-a-Book/Donations

Most members are aware of our Adopt-a-Book program whereby members find a book they would like for the library and donate the money from the list we maintain. A couple of years ago, the Board of the Tennessee Genealogical Society voted to also buy books with donations from members who do not specify how the money will be spent. We thought you might be interested in the books we have purchased for the library this year with the money from the Adopt a Book program as well as the money from other donations.

Book Reviews

By Loretta Bailey

Descendants of James Brown (Senior) (17_-1833) Who Settled in Augusta County, Virginia Between The South River and The "Great Road" That Ran From Waynesboro to Greenville to Lexington, Virginia By Edwin Beecher Brown, 9 x 6, hard cover, lineal index, 2011. (Information about obtaining a copy of this book shown at the end of the review)

A distant kinsman sent author Edwin Brown her mother's lifetime research of the Brown family, and he was given the family bible of James Brown (Senior), purchased in 1803. After musing about these miraculous events, he felt obligated to do more research on the family and produce this book, so that the research would be available to the present Brown families and for future generations.

James Brown, Sr. came to America from Northern Ireland with his family sometime between 1787 and 1803. The research includes James Brown, Sr. and wife Isabella (Boyle?) probably the mother of the children, Boyd, James, Jr. and Nancy and their descendants who are the major families in the book. The book uses a lineal numbering system indexed to enable the reader in finding the biography of each family member. The history of the family before the war, during the war, and after the war is a great addition.

Appendixes A through L cover such information as meaning of abbreviations, the Durward Belmont Brown/Dorothy Rine Brown family (the family from whom he received the lifetime of research), their lineal numbering system and files, Civil War notes, Brown Y chromosome Tests, the James Brown family bible, and chapters about associated families like the Zumbros, Coffees, and the Sachnos.

Also included is a table of cities, towns and counties where Brown descendants can be found and an index of male descendants, male spouses, female descendants and female spouses.

This book was written completely at the author's expense not to be sold, but to be given away. The author will give a copy of the book to anyone who can prove to his satisfaction that they are connected to the Brown family and to suggested genealogical libraries. Mr. Brown has given a few copies to the Augusta County Genealogical Society to sell for profit. To get a copy from the Society, contact Mr. Edwin B. Brown, at P. O. Box 1826, Staunton, Virginia 24402, and he will contact them for you.

Henderson County, Tennessee Connections, A Pictorial History by Brenda Kirk Fiddler, 2005, repr. 2006, 8 ½ x 11, hard cover, 800 pp. with full name index. Cost $60.00 including s&h, personal check or money order. Order from: Brenda Kirk Fiddler, 1414 Frizzell Road, Lexington, TN. 38351. Phone: 731-968-7739 or cell: 731-614-3002. E-mail: brendafiddler@yahoo.com

Henderson County, Tennessee was formed in 1821, and Lexington is the county seat. The photographs in this book cover 160 years, with such topics as CCC Camps, the Civil War, parks and lakes, politics, schools, military service, churches and religion, also farming, businesses, fraternal organizations, recreation and church activities, families and individuals. Primarily the book is about people, young and old, past and present, in all stages of their lives.

The pictures in this book show that many of the people living in the county went from relative poverty to living well. In addition to the people of the county, often there are pictures of people or activities in surrounding counties, other states and cities.

In addition to the pictures, much genealogical information is included, such as birth dates, death dates and marriage dates, with names of parents and children, and in many cases, if they moved from the county, where they went and from where they came. This is a county where the courthouse was burned in 1863 and again in 1865 with some records saved, but this book may fill in some gaps if you are looking for an ancestor.

This is really a big amazing book, and it would be a treasure for anyone who lives in the area or has family there, as well as a wonderful source for genealogical research.

Henderson County, Tennessee Neighbors, a Pictorial History by Brenda Kirk Fiddler, 8 ½ X 11, hard cover, 3 volumes published by Charles and Brenda Fiddler, 2012. Total of 1,488 pages in the 3 volumes. Volume 3 has the full name index. Cost: $70.00 including s&h, pay by personal check or money order. Order from: Brenda Kirk Fiddler, 1414 Frizzell Rd., Lexington, TN 38351. Phone: 731-968-7739 or cell 731-614-3002. E-mail: brendafiddler@yahoo.com

The photographs in these books date from early pioneer days to the present. The volumes were first compiled as a sequel to Connections but have been expanded to include the surrounding counties Carroll, Madison, Chester, Decatur, Benton and Hardin. They also include some pictures in other states, such as Arkansas, Missouri and Tennessee. Volume One covers the topics of nostalgia, politics, public service, churches and activities and towns other than Lexington, such as Darden, Luray, Blue Goose, Center Point, Scotts Hill, Wilderville and Sardis as well as Cedar Grove in Carroll County.

Volume Two is about family groups and children.

Volume Three continues with children, and goes on with school houses of 1939, 1955 & 2011, school communities in 1940, Civil War, military service, CCC Camps, Documents and Lexington/Henderson County, 2011/12, plus the full name index.

All three volumes have such genealogical information as dates of births, death dates, dates of Marriages, who they married, their parents and siblings, and in some cases, where they went and where they came from, and last but not least, what they looked like.

These books contain a wealth of information that can be used as a wonderful souvenir for anyone who lives in or has family in the county and for genealogical research.

Images of America, Dekalb County By Judy Fuson

and Ria Baker, 6X9, soft cover, cc 2012 Cost: $21.99 Available at local retail stores, online bookstores or through Acadia Publishing at www.arcadiapublishing.com or (888) 313-2654.

Another history in pictures in the series of publications by Acadia Publishing, this time it is DeKalb County, Tennessee. DeKalb County, Tennessee was established in 1837 from portions of Wilson, Smith, Putnam, Cannon, Warren and White Counties in Tennessee. The County seat is Smithville. The county was named after Revolutionary War general Johann DeKalb, and the county seat was named after a state senator, Samuel Granville Smith.

The authors, Judy Fuson and Ria Baker, are lifetime residents of DeKalb County, Ms. Fuson at Alexandria. She has collected historical pictures of the county for many years and is presently Mayor of Alexandria. Ms. Baker has taught in the county schools for 30 years and was yearbook adviser for 14 years. They have done an excellent job of compiling this history in pictures.

The period covered in this history is from the early 1900s up to around 1950. The book begins with the churches in the area, and goes on to include the schools, businesses, activities, professions, houses and other buildings, along with the people and families who lived there, and also the various other activities engaged in by the residents of the area. This is a wonderful little history book and anyone who lives in the county or has family who lives there would treasure this book. It would also make a great addition for family history libraries for genealogical research.

Tech Tips

by Debbie Atchley

In our last Let's Discuss It meeting, I demonstrated the use of the Flip-Pal Scanner. I'm not trying to sell this little device, but someone might find this device useful to carry on a trip to the archives, to the home of a relative who is unwilling to let you borrow a picture, or for copying a photo that is larger than a regular scanner bed.

This scanner is portable, using four double A batteries. It doesn't even come with a power cord. I purchased rechargeable batteries to save money. It comes with a 2GB SC card and a USB thumb drive which will let the SD card be read from a USB port on your computer if you don't already have an SD card reader. It can scan a picture up to 4x6" and should scan over 900 of them before you have to replace batteries. The interesting thing about this scanner is that you can "flip" it over and do multiple scans of a LARGE object (could even be as large as a quilt) and have the included software "stitch" together the multiple images into a single image. You can choose between 300 and 600 dpi for your JPG file resolution, and you won't be disappointed at the speed of the scan. When you scan an image, there is a little preview window showing the scanned picture, too. Larger SD cards are also supported in case you'll be away from your computer for uploading on a longer trip.

There are quite a few videos demonstrating the use of this little scanner on YouTube (search for "flippal scanner") and information on purchasing the scanner can be found here: http://flip-pal.com/. You don't need to purchase the photo editing software package, since you can use any software you're using now, for editing the JPG output, and the stitching software is included with the hardware. The price of the scanner is $149.99. I also purchased a carrying case, in addition to rechargeable batteries (and a battery charger). If you'd like to see it in operation, you can attend one of our Let's Discuss It meetings (see www.tngs.org for schedule) and email me (debatchley@gmail.com) and I'll bring it in again and give you a personal demonstration.

Have you visited our website lately? There is a wealth of information there.

You can find full copies of Ansearchin' News from 1960, Vol. 7 through 2000, Vol. 47, Issue #4. This is especially helpful if you haven't been a TNGS member for long.

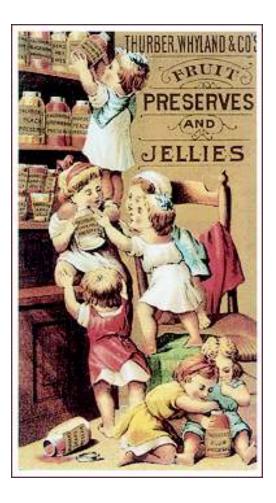

There is also a variety of online articles related to genealogical research such as how to interview relatives most successfully, World War II genealogy links, cleaning and reading tombstones and Google Earth as a genealogical tool.. And don't forget that you may submit articles to the webmaster at ????????

Also you can find information on past sessions of the Let's Discuss It! series from 2009 to the present, with copies of handouts and valuable links. If you were unable to attend these sessions, here is a way to obtain helpful information.

Tennessee Ancestry Certificate Program

The Tennessee Genealogical Society sponsors this program to recognize and honor the early settlers who helped shape the great state of Tennessee. Persons wishing to place their ancestors in this roll of honor are invited to submit an application with supporting documents or other evidence that proves their prime ancestor lived in Tennessee or the area that became Tennessee before 1880. Family charts or computer printouts are not considered to be sufficient proof.

Attractive hand-lettered certificates suitable for framing are issued to each person whose application meets program qualifications. The certificates are inscribed with the prime ancestor's name, when and where he or she settled in Tennessee, and the applicant's name.

The application form for the certificate can be printed at our website www.tngs.org or via snail mail from TNGS, P. O. Box 381824, Germantown, TN 38183-1824.

Ansearchin' News Policies

Contributions

Everyone is invited to submit unpublished material of genealogical value. Pre-1945 Tennessee material is our priority. This includes diaries, letters, tombstone inscriptions, deeds, church records, military records, etc. If a photo is needed for an article, please contact us about how to submit an electronic copy.

We are a nonprofit organization and do not pay for contributions; however, we do acknowledge the contributor and give bylines.

All correspondences with TNGS should include your name, address and telephone number or email address.

Queries

Queries will appear in Ansearchin' News and on the TNGS website.

Members are entitled to one free query each year and may place additional queries for $3 each.

(Nonmembers pay $5 for each.) Queries should be 50 words or less. (See "Queries" in any current issue for correct form.) Please submit queries typed or printed.

Surname Index File Cards

Members are urged to send vital statistics of ancestors to be included in our Master Surname File. Please type or print information on a 3x5 index card. Information should include: subject's surname, given name, middle name; dates of birth, marriage, death; parents; spouse; children; origin; state and country. Please include your name, address and email address on the back of the card.

Book Reviews

Books will be reviewed in Ansearchin' News if the book is donated to The Tennessee Genealogical Society. After a book is reviewed, it will become part of the GRHGC Library. All books will be reviewed in the order received.

Tennessee Ancestry Certificates

TNGS sponsors this program to recognize and honor the settlers who came to Tennessee before 1880. To place your ancestors on this roll of honor, please request an application from Myra Wright, Director of Certificates, at www.tngs.org or the address at the end of this page. Upon completion of the application, please return it along with supporting documents or other proof of your ancestor's residency, along with a $10 application fee. Attractive certificates suitable for framing are issued to each person whose application meets program qualifications. Certificates are inscribed with the prime ancestor's name, date and place of settlement in Tennessee along with the applicant's name. Note: TNGS has published two volumes of Tennessee Settlers and Their Descendants compiled from information contained in these applications and will publish a third volume when adequate numbers of additional applications are received.

Photo Gallery

TNGS may publish pre-1945 unidentified photos in Ansearchin' News. Please advise us of the origin of the photo and any other information that might aid our search. Please contact us about how to submit an electronic copy.

Letters to the Editor

All letters to the editor should be addressed to Janice Ingram. Please feel free to forward any comments or suggestions. In many instances, throughout the magazine, grammar and spelling are left verbatim in order to preserve the character and charm of the era.

Volunteering and Donations

TNGS is strictly a nonprofit organization. It exists to keep the history of Tennessee and our ancestors alive. Volunteers run every aspect of the Society, and if you would like to join the 'cause', please contact a Board member or other volunteer. There is no job too small; remember, Tennessee is the Volunteer State! TNGS is a federally-recognized, nonprofit, tax-exempt, educational organization, and as such, contributions are tax deductible within the IRS guidelines. Your gift will be acknowledged by mail and will include the TNGS tax number.
